

Imperative Query Language (IQL)

IQL is an imperative language for creating user defined operators and continuous queries. The language consists of two sub languages:

- Operator Definition Language \(ODL\) - Used for creating user defined operators
- Query Definition Language \(QDL\) - Used for building continuous queries

Both languages extend from a Basic-Grammar which contains common rules for an imperative language.